Historical Bankton House

Nestled in Dairy Plains is historical Bankton House, a substantial rural homestead on approx 14 acres of grazing land. If you love a home with Character, Grandeur and History you can't go past this. Built around the 1860's using convict labor and convict bricks for the Gibson family. Entering through the front door to a central hallway will lead to numerous rooms including three bedrooms with the master having an ensuite and blackwood built in robes.

Country farmhouse kitchen with a large S/S cooker plus a combustion stove which is great to keep part of the house warm over winter, with space for a dining table. The spacious lounge room has wood heating, plus there is a causal lounge with blackwood cabinetry that could be used as an office. A beautiful Billiard room which is north facing and is ideal for a sunroom if desired. This grand home is ideal for a family as the home has a flexible plan.
